

CANADIANS MORE LIKELY THAN AMERICANS TO DESCRIBE THEMSELVES AS BELONGING TO THE MIDDLE CLASS

JACK JEDWAB

PRESIDENT/PDG-CEO

ACS-AEC ET METROPOLIS CANADA

FEBRUARY 2025

INTRODUCTION AND METHODOLOGY

All things considered, it's cheaper, on average, to live in Canada than it is to live in the US. If you can wrap your head around the currency and unit conversions that go into comparing the cost of living between the two countries, most things, from rental costs to car insurance, are cheaper in Canada. Of course, there are some things that are more expensive in Canada, like food, gas, real estate prices, and some taxes. There are also some parts of Canada that are more expensive to live in than some parts of the US. Plus, the median salary is higher in the US, so you may find that you have more buying power to the South of the border, even if daily purchases are more expensive.

<https://www.koho.ca/learn/canada-or-us-more-expensive/>

CANADIANS MORE LIKELY THAN AMERICANS TO DESCRIBE THEMSELVES AS BEING PART OF THE MIDDLE CLASS

I would describe myself as being part of the country's middle class -
Canada	Total	Male	Female
Yes	71%	72%	71%
No	22%	22%	22%
I don't know	7%	6%	7%

I would describe myself as being part of the country's middle class -
United States	Total	Male	Female
Yes	59%	64%	54%
No	30%	26%	34%
I don't know	11%	10%	12%